Journal of Back and Musculoskeletal Rehabilitation

We are now accepting the submission of original research, case studies, program descriptions, and review articles for publication in the Journal.

Some issues will continue to cover specific topics with a Guest Editor, however, other issues will cover a variety of topics in the area of back and musculoskeletal rehabilitation.

Aim and Scope: The Journal of Back and Musculoskeletal Rehabilitation is a journal whose main focus is to present information about musculoskeletal rehabilitation to clinicians who treat patients with back and musculoskeletal dysfunction and pain. Its goal is to provide readers with (1) a general fund of knowledge on the assessment and management of specific problems and (2) new information considered to be state-of-the-art in the field. The Editorial Board, the Authors and the intended audience are multi-disciplinary as well as multi-specialty.

Manuscripts are accepted from a wide range of health care specialties including physical medicine, anesthesiology, orthopedic surgery, neurology, psychology, psychiatry, rheumatology, neurosurgery, physical therapy, occupational therapy, therapeutic recreation, radiology, osteopathy, chiropractic and nursing. Topics range from chronic pain to sports medicine.
