

A Message from the Journal of Vestibular Research

The Journal of Vestibular Research is pleased to publish the program and abstracts for the XXIIth Meeting of the Bárány Society, including the main meeting in Seattle, the pre-meeting satellite on Orcas Island, and the post-meeting NASA symposium in Portland. The Journal of Vestibular Research is dedicated to the publication of high-quality, original, peer-reviewed papers in the area of vestibular function and its disorders. IOS Press, the publisher of the Journal of Vestibular Research, has provided this program and abstract book at a reduced cost as a gesture of good will toward the vestibular research community. They have also agreed to provide each meeting registrant with a one-year electronic subscription to the Journal. We hope that you will take the opportunity to peruse the Journal of Vestibular Research either online or in your library, and that you will submit manuscripts to the Journal.

Joseph M. Furman
Editor-in-Chief
&
Robert H. Schor
Associate Editor

Journal of Vestibular Research
jvr@msx.upmc.edu