

From the Editor

In August of 1998, I had the distinct honor of presenting a workshop at the Hong Kong Polytechnic University on ergonomics. During my time in Hong Kong, I became acquainted with many occupational therapy practitioners and students who were actively involved in the area of work practice. In particular, I met with Dr. Chetwyn Chan and Ms. Kit Sinclair. From our discussions, Chetwyn was invited to become a member of the editorial board of WORK devoted to Work in Hong Kong. It is my honor to present the fruits of our colleagues' efforts in Hong Kong. I know you will find these articles stimulating. This issue begins the addition of a series of articles entitled, Speaking of Research.

The first in this series is authored by Dr. Phillip Rumrill, Shawn Fitzgerald and Megen Ware and it is titled, Guidelines for Evaluating Research Articles.

As always, I welcome hearing from you.
