

Editorial

Covid is widely spread and has already crossed a million casualty. Even those countries that opened up after recovery, many including UK reimposed tough conditions to be followed. Now many Asian countries have started opening albeit with great caution. A small virus seems like dinosaur of today and yet cure nowhere in sight this year so homo sapiens with extra large brain are held to ransom by a virus with limited taxonomy!

This issue of the journal has three papers from Russia all dealing with forestry. One news important for all—Neanderthal man now extinct was over run by covid variety?

Happy reading!
